DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 18-66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gaku et al. (US 6097089).

Gaku discloses a substrate a having a top surface – not labeled, but facing the chip—for receiving chip f; a bottom surface – facing solder balls i, which are inherently connected to a PCB--; at least one via e in said substrate providing electrical connection between a device electrode – at the extremity of h which is closer to the upper surface of the chip-- and the inherently present circuit board – underneath i--.

Also see vias u – frustum shaped, pointing towards the chip—which connect the chip to the heat slug (Claims 41-44, 59).

- See that said chip is a semiconductor chip (Claim 19)
- Said substrate comprises an organic (Col 11, lines 25+) material (Claims 20,21,22,45,46,47). Also see Page 5 of the disclosure, wherein Applicant admits that FR4 is a well known material in the art.
- See that --see extremity of wire h which is farther from the chip—the prior art discloses a bond pad that abuts a via (claims 23-25), also see lands – wherein balls i are formed—which are connected to the circuit board (claims 26-31)
- The prior art also discloses copper, which is a thermally conductive material (Claims 32-33), see col. 22, line 50
- See that the disclosed heat spreader is an (claims 35, 36,38) electrical conductor (col. 5, lines 40-60), See lines 45-50, wherein the prior art teaches solder (Claim 37,39)
- See that h is a wire (Claim 50)
- See that the frustum shaped vias could comprise – see col 7, lines 15+ -- copper (claims 56,57)

Double Patenting

A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

Claims 58,61,62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 1-17 of prior U.S. Patent No. 6191477. This is a double patenting rejection.

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 18-57,59,60, and 63-66 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-17 of U.S. Patent No. 6191477. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the recitation of a "printed circuit board" attached to the bottom of the substrate does not patentably distinguish the claimed invention from that recited in the prior art since PCB have been used in the art and are well known among semiconductor artisans. It would be obvious to implement a PCB to the claimed invention for ease of assembly.

Recitation in claims 32,65-66 of copper material in the vias does not patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art for copper has been known in the art for its conductive properties. Therefore, it would be obvious to one with skill in the art to provide vias with copper in order to provide a conductive material with low resistivity.

Also, see page 5 of the specification, wherein Applicant admits that FR4 could be replaced for any other well known organic material known in the art.
